A "Happy, Healthy, and Hot" Budget Hearing

Matt Rooney | June 26, 2010

The absolute last thing I needed to hear this week was Barbara Buono's personal experience with pap smears.

But when has Trenton ever cared about what I want, Save Jerseyans?

This unfortunate "TMI" moment resulted from an intense debate over state funding for Planned Parenthood at Thursday's leg of the FY 2011 budget hearings. Governor Chris Christie had previously announced an end to public funding for the notorious abortion agency in his budget proposal, and then the Guv delivered an impassioned defense of his original decision on this month's edition of "Ask the Governor" on NJ 101.5.

This led to a backlash from Democrat legislators determined to keep New Jersey's abortion mills up and running, but one pro-life leader in the State House wasn't prepared to let them get away with lying to the taxpayers regarding where this money was really going.

Then all hell broke loose:

The literature our good friend Assemblyman Jay Webber (R-Morris) was referring to is creatively titled "Hot, Happy and Hot - A Young Person's Guide to Their Rights, Sexuality, and Living with HIV." I guess this is the kind of stuff Barbara Buono reads on the beach?

You can skim the 20-page brochure by clicking here. I also recommend checking out the Assembly Budget Committee's hearing audio archives, clicking on Thursday, June 24th, and listening to the full exchange between Webber and his abortion-happy opponents.

You'll find that Loretta Weinberg wasn't the only "offended" ghoulish gal at Thursday's hearing. What NJN's coverage doesn't show you is Assemblycrat Joan Quigley (D-Hudson) cutting Webber off mid-sentence and exclaiming, "Is this necessary? I'm offended by your behavior - not what you're reading, but the fact that you're reading it."

Save your feigned indignation for someone who cares, Joan. The taxpayers should be offended by your behavior! NJN also omitted the moment when Dem members presented Michele Jaker, executive director of the Planned Parenthood, who actually put forth the argument that her agency saves New Jersey money by performing 40,000 abortions annually. In other words, Planned Parenthood is doing us a favor by killing children before they land on the public assistance rolls.

There's so many things wrong with Ms. Jaker's warped worldview -- factually and morally -- that it'd take several individual blog posts to address them all. Suffice to say, I wouldn't want a daughter of mine subjected to the vision of "healthcare" championed by Ms. Jaker. Sounds to me like something Himmler or Kevorkian would endorse... definitely NOT something New Jersey taxpayers should be coerced into financing!

Kudos to Jay Webber for holding these heinous abortionists accountable on the record.
